THE QUESTION PUT TO THE NEW YORK

At the Western Union office the officials said yesterday that the situation was still constantly improving. One striker returned to work here, five in Augusta, Ga., and two in Louisville. Jay Gould said that four strikers applied for reinstatement here, but their application had been denied because men of only moderate skill were not now required.

Mr. Somersetville said that the wires were not disturbed on Wednesday night or yesterday.

A member of the Brotherhood said yesterday: "This is the end of the third week. None of the boys expected a month's siege. I have no more money and no more food."

John Mitchell said that there were between 600 and 700 operators at the secret meeting of the New York Assembly of the Brotherhood which was held at Clarendon Hall yesterday afternoon. He told them that three weeks had elapsed since the strike began, and that the Western Union Company still held out. He was anxious to know how the striking operators and linemen stood. He said the strike was better to hold out and continue the fight to rise. Every operator and lineman stood up. Master Workman Campbell said last evening:

promising, we are not discouraged because the railroad operators did not all go out or by the reports that men are going back to work. We are in a good way. I do not believe that the Western Union is any better. Of course, there may be a man here and there who returns to work, but then there are fully as many who come over to the ranks of the Brotherhood. I think and have every reason to believe that the strike will be a success, and that the Western Union will give in. The feeling among operators in this city ought to represent the feelings of operators all over the country."

Executive Committee said he expected that all the railroad operators would go out eventually, although at present they were slow about it. Mr. Campbell said that the railroad operators in the Pittsburgh-Lake Erie Railroad would strike during the night of this morning. Attorney Carke of Western Union said that, besides the five Philadelphia suits for damages, he had received word of suits for damages in delay in which suits the company won; only two have been brought, so far as he has heard—one in Chicago and one in New York—while 23 suits are pending. He said he had learned that the strike would be handled in three prosecutions. Here and there for inter-

DALLAS, Aug. 9.—The Telegraph Brotherhood informs The SUG correspondent that the order for operators to quit work on the Gould lines is being issued. The operators are being informed, and that to-night they have information of seventy-two obeying the order and none refusing. Members of the Brotherhood are being informed in respect to traveling by train. The Brotherhood has been told that by to-morrow night the number will reach 200, and that the

that the running of trains will not be in any way impeded, and that the trouble will not be serious. Train Master Clawson of the Gould system asked the Western Union officers to send Dallas-to-day to supply him with operators in case of need.
